

July 2021

IFMA23 NEWS LETTER

Hello all,

We are looking so much forward to seeing you all next year. After a Corona year, we are progressing with the planning of the next IFMA congress now to be held in Copenhagen 2022. For most countries, the corona vaccine will make a huge difference and so expect you to be able to travel under normal conditions next year.

In the planning committee, we have worked towards providing a very interesting and inspiring conference in Copenhagen starting on Sunday, 26th of June, 2022 showing the best of Scandinavian Farming. The key themes concerning management issues will be discussed throughout the congress and they will also be the key points at the field-trips. A delightful accompanying person program has been laid out. We also hope to follow the success of the next Generation program in Tasmania attracting the younger farm sector people to the congress.

We have a detailed outline for the pre- and post-congress tours on the homepage. On the tours, you will see the variation in farming and management approaches in Norway, Sweden and Denmark, but also explore the nature and attractions. At the field trips during the congress, we will give you a further insight to the strengths of Danish and Swedish farming, but also reflect on management challenges of today. As a number of other events have been postponed to 2022, we do encourage you to book in good time, and do keep some time for exploring our region on your own.

See more and remember to subscribe to the newsletter on www.ifma23.org

On behalf of the organizing Committee

Brian H. Jacobsen, Denmark

Ove Karlsson, Sweden

Ole Christen Hallesby, Norway